General Information

The School of Indigenous Studies at UWA organises camps and activities for Indigenous students in WA who are aspiring for tertiary education. In 2015, students in Year 12 are invited to apply for this Leadership Seminar, which is aimed at students with academic ability and an interest in studying at a university level in Perth.

During the Seminar students will be exposed to opportunities available to them in the future through visits to a range of faculties, guest speakers, seminars and workshops. Additionally, students also participate in a number of social and cultural activities.

Activities

Supervision during the week-long residential program is provided by the School of Indigenous Studies’ staff. All students participate in a range of academic, social and cultural activities that provide numerous networking opportunities with likeminded students, University staff and graduates.

Current UWA Indigenous students offer valuable insight and personal experiences while assisting during the activities. These young role models work closely with participants to foster relationships and motivate their interests in science, arts, business and design.

Students studying Stage 2 and 3 WACE subjects or those who display the potential to succeed at university level with an interest in continuing their studies are considered for inclusion in the Seminar, but this is not essential.

The Leadership Seminar will be held in Perth at the Department of Sport and Recreation’s Point Walter Recreation and Conference Centre, Stock Road, Bicton.

Applications

Selection is based on student application forms (available online), school report and an interest in a tertiary education. Preference will be given to those students studying WACE subjects with the view of gaining an ATAR for entry into UWA.

All costs including travel, meals and accommodation are sponsored.
